DEATH OF HUSBAND LEADS TO SUICIDE

DROWNS HERSELF IN DEEP CISTERN

Young Widow, of Joppa, Becomes Despondent and Ends Her Life

MRS. IDA SMITH TAYLOR.

Husband Died Year Ago and She Has Been Melancholy Ever Since That Event.

SURVIVED BY LITTLE CHILD.

Despondent on account of the death of her husband a year ago, Mrs. Ida Taylor, the youthful widow of James Taylor, of Joppa, Ill., walked a quarter of a mile before daybreak yesterday morning and drowned herself in the cistern of Andrew Todd. Her body was found by members of the family, who went to the cistern to get water later in the day. Coroner T. F. Wallace, of Metropolis, viewed the body. The burial will take place this afternoon. Mrs. Taylor was 34 years old. She had one child a year old. She had been melancholy for months, her trouble being attributed to grief over her husband's death.

FARMERS WILL MEET

Whenever Secretary Rogers Calls
Special Session.

Secretary Rogers, of the McCracken County Farmers' Institute, has not issued a call for a meeting of the institute, which meets February 27, 28 and 29 at Shelbyville. State Agriculture Commissioner Vreeland has notified the different county institutes that the second annual state institute will be held there at that time. President S. A. Fowles said that the farmers of the county would get together whenever a meeting is called by the secretary.

ANNUAL MEETING OF CLUB TONIGHT

At the annual meeting of the Commercial club tonight 20 directors will be elected, and H. C. Rhodes probably will be elected president. President Joseph L. Friedman will preside, and members will deliver short addresses on the work of the organization its accomplishment, plans and prospects.

PROVING VENUE.

Witnesses Saw Body of Woman
Floating in Cumberland.

Nashville, Jan. 31.—The first evidence brought out by the state in the Peist murder case was to establish the venue of the crime, that is, to prove that Mrs. Rosa Mangrum was killed in Davidson county. To this extent two witnesses testified that they saw the body of a woman floating past Clegg's Ferry some time in January, 1906, some two or three weeks after Mrs. Mangrum's disappearance and a short while before her body was found in the Ohio at Cairo.

Chicago Car Barns Burned.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Fire this morning caused by the explosion of illuminating gas, destroyed the North Clark street car barns, containing 150 cars and the machine shop across the street and the storage house in the rear. The loss is estimated at $100,000.

James Mackus was overcome by gas fumes and lost his life. Three firemen were injured.

THEATRICAL TRUST IS

INDICTED IN NEW YORK.
New York, Jan. 31.—The grand jury today returned indictments against Klaw & Branger, Frohman, Nixon and others, leaders of the supposed theatrical trust, charging them with conspiracy. The complaint is David Belasco.

Chicago, Jan. 31.—Dispatches from Vandalia, Highland and Greenville, Ill., report an earthquake shock at 11:30 last night. Many persons were aroused from sleep.

EARTHQUAKE.

Indianapolis, Ind., Jan. 31.—Reports from various parts of the state tell of earthquake shocks last evening. The tremors varying from five seconds to a minute.

BURTON DECLINES.

Washington, Jan. 31.—It is announced today that Representative Burton, of Ohio, will not accept the chairmanship of the rivers and harbors committee in the Sixty-sixth congress. Burton has been at the head of the Waterways committee twelve years and has reported and passed through the house without amendment seven appropriation bills for the improvement of rivers and harbors. His health is given as the cause of his retirement.

ODD FELLOWS WILL GO TO METROPOLIS

Interstate Association Meets
There and Paducah Lodge Will Compete for Prizes in Every Event

LARGE ATTENDANCE EXPECTED.

Six hundred Odd Fellows from Paducah lodges will attend the interstate meeting at Metropolis, Ill., April 26, and will compete with all teams for prizes in every contest.

Last year several small Illinois lodges withdrew from the interstate association and attempted to break it up. The Illinois lodges wanted a postponement, and local lodges refused because all arrangements had been made.

The lodges that withdrew formed an association known as the Southern Illinois association and will meet April 26 at Anna, Ill. The association is not expected to live, and local lodge men predict that the interstate lodge will be petitioned to take it back before long.

At the interstate association meeting at Metropolis hand contests and other features will attract many persons and committees have been appointed by the Metropolis lodge even this far in advance to prepare for the visitors' reception and entertainment. There are three lodges in Paducah, No. 195; Mangum, No. 2, and Mechanicsburg, No. 218.

REAR-END COLLISION.

Results in Two Deaths and One Fatal Injury.

Cincinnati, Jan. 31.—A rear-end collision of two freight trains on the Big Four near Delhi, Ohio, this morning caused two deaths. Conductor Keely Osgood and brakeman Withen, of Columbia City, Ind., were instantly killed. Samuel Sheehy, of Cincinnati, was probably fatally injured. The cause of the wreck is not determined.

Strange Fatality Follows Family.

Bedford, Ind., Jan. 31.—Since the arraignment of Alva Callahan for the murder of John Walters, last September, it develops that an unusual fatality has followed the family.

His parents have both since died, and his brother, who came here for the bodies, has also died, as have his two sons.

The latter were the state's main witnesses, from the fact that they alone witnessed the trouble that ended in the killing of their father.

There is only one kind of a newspaper circulation statement that is worth any consideration, and that is the daily detailed statement. The Sun is the only Paducah paper printing such a statement.

DARWIN P. KINGSLEY, WHO MAY SOON BECOME PRESIDENT OF THE NEW YORK LIFE INSURANCE COMPANY.

DARWIN P. KINGSLEY, who is spoken of as the prospective new head of the New York Life Insurance company, is a native of Vermont, a graduate of the University of Vermont and a son-in-law of the late John A. McCall. In 1878 he was state auditor of Colorado, and since 1898 he has been vice president of the New York Life. He is in his fiftieth year.

Rains Give Rise to Apprehension On Account of Stage of the River

Situation Again Becomes Conjectural Because Extent of Storm and Precipitation Must be Considered

OHIO RIVER MAY RISE AGAIN.

With rain as the leading role, the play of nature becomes a tragedy at this particular time. While the river showed the largest fall in the last 24 hours it has shown since the fall set in, and while tomorrow morning may show another fall, if the rain continues, and is general, the minus signs in the river reports will be changed to plus—and plus 1884.

When the river is low and heavy rains set in, a large amount of the water at first has no effect because the dry soil absorbs it, but with the soil already soaked, the rain today will be felt immediately on the rivers. It all depends on the extent and degree of the rainfall in the next few days.

Just as the rivermen and interests were anticipating an early return to normal conditions and were exchanging congratulations over the escape from serious damage from the high water, for the rains to start up again saps their buoyancy in short order. Nothing to do now but watch the weather reports and keep an eye on the weather vane for a change in quarter of the wind. Snow would be a blessing compared with rain.

The river fell five-tenths of a foot since yesterday morning, the stage this morning being 44.8. The total fall in the last three days has been nine-tenths of a foot. The lowest stage of the river in January was on the first day of the month, when the river was at 23.5. The highest was 45.7 on the 28th.

January has been a remarkable month in many respects: 12.22 inches of rain fell. It is the heaviest rainfall for the month on record. Three inches of snow fell. The weather has been too warm for the season and is responsible for the heavy rainfall.

Fortunately the rains will find the upper Ohio river much better prepared to stand another rise. At Pittsburgh the river is at a summer stage and at Cincinnati and Louisville it has fallen sufficiently to require a good deal of rain to bring the river back to a dangerous stage. The fall at Paducah thus far has been slow because of its nearness to the Mississippi river. Rain would be more immediately felt here than above.

Altogether the situation is one which, as stated last week, baffles accurate prediction. Obviously the river will fall as long as the rains hold up, but not even the weather man can tell what the weather will do for any length of time ahead, and frequently in the past month his prediction of decidedly colder weather have not been realized, or at best only transiently.

The continuation of the warm weather will bring out the fruit trees and early spring vegetables to a state where a really cold snap will surely kill them. It is altogether improbable that the season will pass without some winter weather.

MARKET SLUMPING.

New York, Jan. 31.—With the recent stock bond issues of railroad industrial corporations exceeding the national debt by many millions, the stock market today is in a bit of financial indisposition, security values slumping heavily. Since the first of the year over a billion dollars have been lost in market to shareholders all over the country.

2,000 CARS.

Minneapolis, Jan. 31.—At least 2,000 Great Northern railroad cars, loaded with freight, are stalled in and near Minneapolis, awaiting an opening of the western lines. Included in the merchandise are Christmas confections valued at thousands of dollars, which the railroads have been unable to deliver.

GRAIN MARKET.

Cincinnati, Jan. 31.—Wheat, 78; corn, 46; oats, 40.

PUT LOUISVILLE ON UNFAIR LIST

Louisville, Jan. 31.—The Louisville Federation of Labor has announced it will place the city of Louisville on the "unfair" list if it does not raise wages of city laborers at the next meeting of the city council.

SUPERVISOR HAS GOOD ROADS PLAN

Bond Issue Supplemented With Work of Farmers Living on Highways Would Do Work
in Three Years

JUDGE LIGHTFOOT'S HOPE

The good roads movement set on foot by McCracken county, and which has been faithfully followed for several years by County Judge R. T. Lightfoot and Road Supervisor Bert Johnson, its champions, has spread rapidly to other counties, and Graves and Ballard are to issue bonds for graveling roads. Others are expected to follow, and McCracken county may extend her building operations. A great deal of interest is centered in the meeting of the fiscal court next month when the matter of issuing bonds will be discussed by the magistrates.

The only way McCracken county may issue bonds in its present state is by a vote of two-thirds of its voters, and then for but one per cent of the total assessment. This will give an estimated $108,000. Judge Lightfoot and Road Supervisor Bert Johnson are working hard for the improvements and receiving deserved encouragement.

"My idea is this," Supervisor Bert Johnson stated. "If we may issue $100,000 in bonds this will give us enough money to gravel 100 miles of road, even if the county stands all the expense. Property owners have been paying half the cost of road improvements, and I believe that the majority of them will help the county in building all the roads. We will have to spend some of the money on bridges, but with the proper assistance from residents, we will be able to gravel the roads of the entire county in less than three years."

For One Dollar and Love.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Richard Harlan and James S. Harlan, sons of Justice Harlan of the supreme court, have presented their mother the handsome home where the aged jurist and his wife live and the adjoining house. This property is very valuable. The consideration named in the deed is $1 and love for Malvina Francis Harlan.

FRATERNITY BUILDING STOCK WILL BE SOLD

One Side or Other Expected to Buy Entire Interest in Stock Company,
According to Report

Odd Fellows or Masons Likely to Acquire Full Control of the Handsome Office and Lodge Building

DUAL MANAGEMENT HAS PROVEN UNPOPULAR

Joint ownership of the building by district fraternal bodies proving unsatisfactory in some respects will result, it is said, in the auction of the stock held by members of the Masons and Odd Fellows to one of the two divisions. Because of petty friction in the management of the building, the auction sale was favorably discussed in all lodges, and probably this week will see a decision on what course to pursue.

The building was erected three years ago at a cost of $27,000. The site, including the property on which The Register building is located, was secured for $12,000. Bonds were issued by the stock company composed of members of Union Encampment, Ingleside and Mangum lodges of Odd Fellows, and Main City lodge and district fraternal bodies proving unsatisfactory in some respects will result, it is said, in the auction of the stock held by members of the Masons and Odd Fellows to one of the two divisions. Because of petty friction in the management of the building, the auction sale was favorably discussed in all lodges, and probably this week will see a decision on what course to pursue.

RAILROAD WORK

Will Keep Labor Well Employed All Next Summer.

Labor will be at a premium this summer in the Ohio valley because of the floods and heavy rains, especially on railroads; and already officials are looking forward to immediate work on roadbeds. The damage done during the past several months in heavy rains is impossible to estimate. It served to point out weak places in the road, and will enable the railroads to put their roadbed in the best of condition, which will necessitate the raising of grades. All railroads south of the Ohio were damaged and section laborers will not have to search for work anywhere south of the Ohio and east of the Mississippi river.

Elects Officers and Will Install Them
Sunday.

Officers were elected by the Junior Christian Endeavor society of the Kentucky Avenue Presbyterian church as follows: President, Lillian Maynard; vice president, Hattie Honneberger; secretary, Julia Galvin; treasurer, Louanna Glendon; pianist, Henrietta Pruett. They will be installed Sunday afternoon, February 3. The services will be in charge of Mr. W. D. Watson. The Junior Christian Endeavor society meets every Sunday afternoon at 2 o'clock.

TO KEEP SUN OFF MAYOR.

DREAMING SUMMER AWAY.
Architect A. L. Lawler has finished the plans for the largest porch in the city, to be built around Mayor Yeiser's summer home opposite Wallace park. In the front it will be 57 feet long by 15 feet wide and will extend 27 feet back on each side of the house.

Two Get Diplomas.

Two of the three pupils for county school diplomas examined here Saturday passed. They are: Miss Audrey Tate, of the Hendron school, and Lorena Grubbs, colored, of the Cecil school.

NEW SEATS ORDERED.

Will Not Arrive Until Sometime in March.

Not until after March 10 will new seats to accommodate the overflow in the High school reach here. This is the earliest date possible for them to arrive, the firm writing a letter to this effect to the school board.

A sample of the desk selected was received yesterday. It has a hinged flap for writing purposes, and the seat swings on hinges, opera chair style. A wooden pocket is attached to the back of each for storing books. The seat is manufactured in Grand Rapids, Mich., and on account of previous orders the firm cannot ship before March 10. The seats will cost $2.35 each and 350 is the maximum order.

ANOTHER CARRIER FOR POSTOFFICE

Paducah soon will have 13 mail carriers, the department at Washington has taken sufficient cognizance of the need in this city to detail an inspector to look over the situation and report the condition. An application for another carrier was made some time ago. The territory covered by the mail carriers will not be extended, but the work will be divided so as to facilitate the services.

BLOWS OFF WIFE'S HEAD.

THEN MURDERS INFANT.
Waycross, Ga., Jan. 31.—H. E. Lillis, recovering from a spree, placed a shotgun at the head of his wife who had a babe in her arms, and blew off the top of her head. The babe fell to the floor and with the other barrel Lillis shot his arm off. He was arrested.

PRESIDENT TO ATTEND

MONUMENT DEDICATION
Washington, Jan. 31.—The president announced today he would visit Canton, O., the last week in September, to attend the dedication of the McKinley monument.

Murders Stepfather Because He Was Fighting With Boy's Mother

Joppa, Ill., Jan. 31.—Because his stepfather, Charles Lewis, assaulted

his mother, Joe Faulker, colored, a tie carrier, on the City of Memphis, who came home sick yesterday, went to the home of a neighbor, secured a shotgun and returning to the house, blew Lewis' head off. Faulker then made his escape, leaving a note explaining that he was defending his mother. He has not been captured. Young Faulker has worked on the river all his life. According to his mother's statement, when the boy came home she and Lewis were quarreling, and Lewis struck her. Coroner T. F. Wallace will hold the inquest.

WEATHER — Rain tonight and probably Friday. Warner tonight. Highest temperature yesterday, 41; lowest today, 38.

JERK WATER TOWNS IN KITTY LEAGUE

Pana, Champaign and Paris, Ill., IncludedC. C. Gosnell Will Be Elected President and Paducah and Cairo
Will Be Dropped.

DANVILLE WILL HAVE A TEAM

Danville may have a team in the Kitty league after all, according to news that comes from Centralia,
where the league meeting was held Sunday.

Here is the report sent out concerning this move:
"Although the present owners of the Danville club may refuse to again place it in the league the territory still belongs to the Kitty and will be used by it. Another man whose name was not announced informed those at the meeting that he would place a team in Danville if given the opportunity.

Jerkwater League in Prospect.

The league meeting was a good deal of a frost. Nothing was done except to release Jacksonville from the league and to arrange another meeting. There were representatives there from Centralia, Pana, Mattoon and Vincennes and it seems likely that these cities with Paris, and Champaign added or Danville, if there is anything in the report given above,
will compose the league. This league, composed of such small towns, could hardly be expected to last much past
the Fourth of July if it got that far.

Cairo and Paducah.

There was no action taken toward dropping Cairo and Paducah from the league, but this will likely be done when the magnates are to meet
at Pana and perfect the organization of a new Kitty. At this meeting the formation of the league will be completed and officers for the coming year will be elected. Paducah and Cairo will be asked to send representatives to the meeting and unless they come they are practically certain to be dropped. It is believed they will not come as Paducah is anxious to quit league baseball and Cairo cannot expect a berth with Paducah absent because of its location.

C. C. Gosnell of Vincennes, will be re-elected president of the league,
having announced that he would accept the office. He will also take charge of the Vincennes team.

Notice to First Meeting of Creditors.

Cracken and district of aforesaid, a bankrupt: Notice is hereby given that on the 19th day of January, A.
D., 1907, the said Ernest Rehkopf was duly adjudicated bankrupt, and that the first meeting of his creditors
will be held at my office in Paducah, McCracken county, Kentucky, on the 9th day of February, A. D., 1907, at 9 o'clock in the forenoon, at which time the said creditors may attend,
prove their claims, appoint a trustee,
examine the bankrupt and transact
such other business as may come before said meeting.

CANCEL SOCIAL ENGAGEMENTS

Chicago Quarantine Is Becoming Stringent.

Chicago Jan. 31.—As a result of the scarlet fever epidemic which seems to be sweeping the city, Chicago was placed in state quarantine
today, and the health department issued a bulletin requesting that all social engagements be canceled for the time. City officials regard the situation as extremely grave.

PRESCRIPTION TO CLEAN THE BLOOD.

Any one can easily mix too
following prescription at home,
which is said to be splendid because of its peculiar action upon the kidneys, which are made to properly filter and strain from the blood the impurities and poisons.

Get the ingredients, which are all of vegetable extraction and harmless, from any good pharmacy and mix them by shaking
well in a bottle; Fluid Extract Dandelion, one-half ounce; Compound Kargon, one ounce; Compound Syrup Sarsaparilla, three ounces.

Take in teaspoonful doses after each meal and at bedtime.
Drink plenty of good water, too.

Those who require a good blood cleanser and system tonic,
whose kidneys are weak and clogged up, should prepare this mixture and take as directed for a few days and note results.

REAL KENTUCKY FOX HUNT

A Kentucky fox hunt when it en-bodies all of its features is a "home made" institution as far, in fact,
as those of its neighboring Southern states. The hunt may be by day and it may be by night. Both styles of the hunt have their devotees. Cross-country riding recommends the day chase; the night lends a charm to a close race that is indescribable. There are hundreds of keen, successful fox-hunters in the South—"men who are known by the hounds they keep"— who give no thought to the riding feature of the chase, but who can, as far as sound can carry, tell you what hound is doing his work and what hound is not. This is one of the great joys of the night hunt. The man who has never turned his back to a bed of red coals, peered out into the night while the dew about him congealed into a frost and listened to a sterling race hour after hour has never lived—wholly. Under favorable conditions, and in the vast stillness of the night, you move but to close your eyes when there comes to you from the dark silent woods, the melodious cry of the pack a mile, two miles, possibly but a few hundred yards away and see in detail such a picture as cannot be put on canvas.

Your ears are turned to an accompanying chorus that the grand organ cannot duplicate—if you have the "know," if you feel it, if you have the love of the chase inborn.
Contrary to many well founded beliefs and customs this is fox hunting—high ground fox hunting. No pink teas at the club house afterwards, no discussion as to the relative merits of jumpers but a cold
lunch from your hunting coat pocket
and a closer and deeper understanding of the hounds in your pack.
Hunters have told me that they have long wondered that men could hold such varying ideas as to the chief charm in fox hunting and so many of them fall so far short of getting out of it the best that is in it.—Gen. Roger D. Williams in December "Recreation."

David Warfield's Spanking

David Warfield, the actor, tells
the following story of a good spank-
ing that he got from his mother,
which was something of a turning
point in his career. This incident
happened in San Francisco, of which
city Mr. Warfield is a native:

"If it had not been for a bitter punishment meted out to me by my mother, when I was about nine years of age," said Mr. Warfield, "I might be doing my best acts on a flying trapeze
instead of on the stage, and my most effective 'lights' would have been
aerial instead of oral. As a youngster, the height of my ambition was
to own a circus and to be its bright
and particular star. In fact, I resolved that this ambition should be accomplished without further delay. So I summoned a few of my friends, and
together we organized a circus in the cellar of my home. My specialty was the trapeze. We had sold quite a number of seats, at a bottle, a horseshoe, old iron, plus, etc. In fact anything that might be converted into
cash at a junk shop after the performance. Then the frightful thought struck me—I had no tight-rope—what
was to be done? I crept quietly to
my mother's room, and stole a pair
of her white stockings. I drew them
over my legs, donned a pair of short
trousers—and there I was.

"Everything went splendidly till my turn. Then at a crash of kettle
covers mad, by the solitary member
of our 'trass band' I bounced into
the air, got on the trapeze, made of
a broomstick and clothesline, and
there I swung gracefully to and fro,
for a few moments—and that was as far as I got with my act. My mother
did the rest. She had heard the rum-
pus in the cellar, and came to see what had caused it. I can even now
remember placing my ear in her
hand, and being led away.

"How small a thing may thus alter
the course of one's career!"—Success.

depot at Murray, Ky., with all its contents between 1 and 2 o'clock this morning. The efforts of the inadequate fire department were of no avail and so intense was the heat
that no one could enter the structure to rescue freight. The loss is fully covered by insurance.

The freight depot was a frame one of the highest and most substantial
on the division except at Paducah and Memphis, and was discovered on fire shortly after 1 o'clock.

This morning Supt. W. J. Hills and Calm Agent B. B. Linn went to Murray to look after the records. The depot was located directly across a series of tracks from the passenger station, and all records, bills of lad-ing and books were kept in the passenger station. The officials can readily learn how much freight was stored
in the warehouse, and to whom it belonged.

Insurance is carried on all property belonging to the road, and an official stated this morning that the loss would be fully covered. The stone foundations remain intact, and the structure will be immediately rebuilt.

"The fire must have been of incendiary origin," an official stated
this morning. "There had been no fire about the place and no trains or engines had been about for many hours. The theory of a spark from an engine is out of the question."

This is the first loss sustained by the Nashville, Chattanooga and St.
Louis road in years from fire.

David Warfield's Spanking

David Warfield, the actor, tells
the following story of a good spank-
ing that he got from his mother,
which was something of a turning
point in his career. This incident
city Mr. Warfield is a native:

"If it had not been for a bitter punishment meted out to me by my mother, when I was about nine years of
age," said Mr. Warfield, "I might be
doing my best acts on a flying trapeze
instead of on the stage, and my most
aerial instead of oral. As a young-
ster, the height of my ambition was
and particular star. In fact, I resolved that this ambition should be accomplished without further delay. So I
together we organized a circus in the
the trapeze. We had sold quite a number of seats, at a bottle, a horse-
shoe, old iron, plus, etc. In fact anything that might be converted into
cash at a junk shop after the performance. Then the frightful thought
struck me—I had no tight-rope—what
was to be done? I crept quietly to
my mother's room, and stole a pair
over my legs, donned a pair of short
trousers—and there I was.

"Everything went splendidly till my
covers mad, by the solitary member
a broomstick and clothesline, and
for a few moments—and that was as
far as I got with my act. My mother
did the rest. She had heard the rum-
pus in the cellar, and came to see
what had caused it. I can even now
remember placing my ear in her
hand, and being led away.

the course of one's career!"—Success.

an ounce to the ton.

THEATRICAL NOTES

Hanford at "Marc Antony"

Like a change of diet the classic drama was welcomed to Paducah last night at The Kentucky theater by a large audience, when Charles B. Hanford, and his capable supporting company, presented "Julius Caesar." Mr.
Hanford assuming the role of "Marc Antony." No play of the great dramatist affords more opportunities for strong speeches, or requires more of the supporting company than does "Julius Caesar." Calus Cassius and Marcus Brutus and Marc Antony have in turn been featured by some prominent stars but usually a combination is formed for the production, the leading roles demanding such talent for their proper rendering. No greater Marc Antony has been seen by the present generation than Mr. Hanford.
Perhaps he has no equal in that role.

His speech over Caesar's dead body is a masterpiece of eloquence and the audience felt the thrill that moved the Roman mob to mutiny. Mr. Hanford is ably supported by a well trained cast of Shakespearean actors,
who read their lines with intelligence
and a true conception of the meaning, and while Mr. Hanford's superior qualifications are manifested by every chance comparison, he is ably supported by Frank Henning and John
M. Kilne, as Brutus and Cassius, respectively, their well directed efforts bringing out all the meaning and purport of the dignified tragedy of Roman ambitions. Miss Marie Dofman
as Portia won applause by the sincerity and effectiveness of her acting in her one scene in Brutus' garden.
Alexander MacKenzie made an excellent Caesar; and the others are excellent, not excepting Eugene Savoyard as Lucius. The scenery is historically correct, and the mob, soldiers, hetorics, etc., were well drilled, adding effectiveness to the scenes in which they were introduced.

SOMETHING TO ### THINK ABOUT

Almost everybody knows that license should be paid in January; yet some people seem to forget it. This is intended as a friendly reminder
FOR YOUR GOOD.

Ten per cent must be added to all license after February 1st. Naturally this is not a pleasant obligation to settle. It is also an unpleasant duty for the treasurer to collect it. Therefore endeavor to avoid it by your prompt attention.

Every business, occupation, agency
and profession is liable for a license.
Kindly call at the city treasurer's office at your earliest convenience
that you may save this penalty, and greatly oblige.

Yours respectfully,
JOHN J. DORIAN,
City Treasurer.

cial Whirl," which will be presented under the direction of Sam S. and Lee Shubert, February 5, includes a number of brilliantly novel conceits.
The songs, "Bill Simmons," or "I Can't Keep Still When the Music Plays," sung in character by "Bezy,"
the maitre d'attendant, is being played by bands and orchestras throughout the country, and has made a big hit. It carries an original and neat dance during the chorus and the tuneful refrain with just enough of ragtime to make it steppey, is always accompanied by the sound of feet pattling in the audience. "You're just the Girl I'm Looking For," composed for the piece by E. Ray Getz, is another hit, carrying unique chorus and light effects, with a melody which is of the type that people whistle. "Just Kids," arranged by Charles J. Ross, is a musical number introducing a number of incidental sketches and dances. Among the other numbers which have won popularity are: "A Rainy Day," "Old Man Manhattan," also arranged by Mr. Ross; "The Profession of a Manicure," "VI VI,"
"Love Among the Freaks," and "Run Away Naughty Man." The ensemble numbers are unusually spirited and full of action.

So Long, Salome!

New York, Jan. 31.—A decision to discontinue the present action of the Strauss opera, "Salome," at the Metropolitan opera house, was reached today at a conference between the directors of the company owning the opera house and representatives of the Conried Metropolitan Opera company which leases the building. The conference was the result of a letter sent by the directors of the owning company protesting against further presentation of the opera.

Mouse Causes Theater Panic.

Vienna, Jan. 31.—A mouse scur-ried across the auditorium of the Royal theater in Josefstadt during the performance of "Fledermaus"
last night. Some of the women stood upon the seats and screamed, ensuing a panic, the bulk of the audience
not knowing the cause of the alarm.
The performers left the stage twenty minutes before calm was restored.
The mouse escaped.

Humors of Eccentricity.

Genius and imitators of genius have what the reader calls eccentricities. Here are some examples: A lady of Putney, returning from a walk, thought she was late for lunch. She met a dapper little man and asked him the time. He drew himself to his full height, and, flashing a withering glance at her, exclaimed, with a motion of his hand, "Get out of my way, woman!" It was Mr. Swinburne, disturbed in his converse with Muses.

The great men and the stranger generally strike a spark of humor. Do you remember the story of the great Duke of Wellington, who was puzzled at the crossing by Apsley House. A pompous stranger helped him across, and on the pavement expressed his pride and satisfaction at having been the means under Providence of assisting the greatest soldier of this or any other age. That was enough for the duke. He said the right thing. He said, "Don't be a d---d fool, sir!"

A pessimist can with no other provocation than a piece of dream cake evolve a nightmare.

Removal Sale of A. Pollock's Jewelry Store

About February 15th we will take possession of our new store room---now occupied by the Great Pacific Tea and Coffee Co., 333 Broadway. In the meantime we have made startling reductions on our entire line of Watches, Diamonds and Jewelry. This for two reasons: First, we wish to move as little as possible of the present and, when we get into our new location, we mean to have a clean, new stock. If you need anything in our line give us a call, for we have made a cut of 50 per cent in many instances.

FOUR MILLIONS STARVE TO DEATH

Condition of China Impossible to Conceive

Epidemics in Concentration Camps Add to Horrors of Situation of Interior.

SOME INCIDENTS REVOLTING.

Washington, Jan. 31.—The appalling conditions in China as the result of famine, as told in Chinese newspapers and other mail advices reaching the state department, coupled with the warning given by Consul-General Rodgers of the possible effects of the outbreaks which daily occur in the famine districts, have attracted the attention of the government authorities, and developments will be closely watched.

One of the greatest dangers which the relief workers confront is an epidemic in the great concentration camps which have been formed by refugees, who have fled from the stricken districts to the south by tens of thousands, the people live, some of them only partially clothed, others entirely naked, in mud huts held together by matting. Medical supplies and skill are badly needed in these self-formed camps, as well as food and clothing.

The native officials and authorities are doing their utmost to control the situation, but the task is now far beyond them and outside aid is badly needed. The government has opened public relief works where men can secure employment. Estimates have been made of the cost of feeding each starving person, and the total amount will reach close to $20,000 daily. This estimate is based on a calculation that 4,000,000 people are actually starving.

Some of the incidents of the famine related in the Chinese press are most revolting. A story is told of one family—the mother and father and two children. The mother left home on a search for food. While she was away the father, despairing of aid, threw both children into the river. The mother returned and, learning what happened, threw herself into the river and drowned. The grief-stricken father followed, and thus the whole family perished.

Louisville's Bad Milk Supply. Louisville, Jan. 31.—The startling statement was made by Dr. M. K. Allen, city health officer, that between 15 and 30 per cent. of the milk cows from which the supply of Louisville is drawn are tuberculous, and therefore unfit to produce milk. Tuberculin tests recently conducted by the department or by veterinarians in their employ, disclosed the fact in one instance that 12 cows out of a herd of 35 were tuberculous, and that these were at once segregated. The fact that reaction after inoculation shows tuberculous nodules is sufficient to warrant condemnation of the animal, although in most cases it is still available for beef purposes.

Edwin S. Cramp believes that the policy of the American navy will tend in the direction of smaller fleets of larger vessels, following the lead of England and other countries.

It often takes a really great man to properly attend to the little things in this life.

JERUSALEM

NOTICEABLE INCREASE OF JEWISH POPULATION THERE.

Although Persecuted Many Are Prospering and By Right Denying Why Confidence.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Although the laws of the Ottoman empire forbid persons of Jewish birth to own property or to do business or even live in Palestine, there are between 50,000 and 60,000 of that race resident in Jerusalem alone, and their number is gradually increasing, says William E. Curtis. The colony has doubled during the last twenty-five years, and now constitutes about three-fourths of the population of the holy city, notwithstanding the regulation prohibiting immigration, and most of the newcomers are entirely or in part dependent upon the charity of their American and European brethren. They come chiefly for sentimental and religious reasons, but a considerable number are engaged in business and have been eminently successful. They, more than the other races, are oppressed by taxation and blackmail. The local officials usually require them to pay one-tenth of all they produce as taxes and often seize one-half or two-thirds of their crops or any property of value that can be attached.

It is very difficult for a Jew to do business in Palestine for this reason. The local authorities feel at liberty to help themselves to anything he has. He has no protection in the courts or from any other source, because, technically, he has no rights in the country, and hence the police officials can rob and blackmail him without mercy. This is said to be one of the reasons why the Jews live in such wretched houses and such squalor all over Palestine. Some rich men have been able to protect themselves by paying blackmail. One Jew in Jerusalem is credited with several millions of dollars, which he has made contracting with the government, making loans and speculating in various ways. He has the confidence of the authorities, and it is said that they prefer to trade with him rather than with any other person.

NEWS OF KENTUCKY

Broke Through the Ice.

Sturgis, Ky., Jan. 31.—Last evening at 5 o'clock the first fatality of the high waters occurred, which was at Boxtown, a colored settlement of Sturgis. While attempting to cross the ice which had formed on the water, which was high in the settlement, Brew Anderson, a resident, had almost reached his destination, when the ice broke, letting him in over his head. His son Willie, in attempting to save him, came near losing his own life.

Suddenly there was an explosion and a large part of the roof went skyward. This set fire to the building, and it was almost destroyed before the fire department could extinguish the flames. A negro named Harris was painfully burned by two explosions, but his wounds are not serious.

Fatal Fight on Frozen Creek.

Jackson, Ky., Jan. 31.—Ed Lykins was shot and killed by Marlon Atkinson in a fight on Frozen creek, ten miles from Jackson, last night. Lykins had gone to the home of Atkinson and raised a quarrel with him, which resulted in Lykins firing into the house and striking Mrs. Atkinson and breaking her thigh. He fired at the father, and in the fight which ensued Lykins was shot in the head, killing him instantly. No arrests have as yet been made, and it is not known as to whether Atkinson is in hiding.

Four Preachers on a Jury.

Mt. Sterling, Ky., Jan. 31.—In the circuit court today, something unheard of before in the history of the state occurred, when four preachers, the Reverends Meacham, Joplin, Turner and Hobbs, were accepted on a jury to try a case of illegal voting against Clarke Goodpastor. A large crowd was in court to witness the unusual spectacle.

Has 757 feet front on Hinkleville Gravel Road, and plat gives 40 feet cross roads through the tract, so that each and every lot fronts either on these gravel roads or these newly opened roads. Most of the lots front at each end on these roads. No nicer land in McCracken county. The 20 acres front on Hinkleville road has nice grove of forest trees on it and lays so as to make ideal residence sites.

Price on the Hinkleville road front is $100.00 per acre, of which $10 acre cash and balance in monthly or quarterly payments running five years. All other lots $65 acre on same terms. While these prices are uniform, there is difference in desirability of lots and first customers get choice. Come and see plat and list men who have taken dozen lots before I could get the parcels staked off. For home or investment lots you lose opportunity if you fail to take this. ## Daily Thought.

"The strong man is the one who has mastered his weaknesses."

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.

Pending in the Illinois legislature,
is a measure, extending the franchise
to women, except in elections of judges. Indiana's female suffrage bill comprehends all town and city elections. Ohio permits women to vote for school trustees. Why women should be allowed to vote at all,
and then be restricted in the right of suffrage, is beyond the ken of logical intellect. The Illinois law idea is almost insulting, as though under pressure the men would permit the women to vote, but to preserve the purity of the judiciary, except in the wholesale surrender. In Ohio it would appear that the very opposite is the intention, and the hope of bettering the school situation prompted
the legislature to invite feminine participation in the selection of the tribunes. Indiana solons, no doubt, think woman's sphere has sufficiently broadened under the freedom of our institutions to awaken an interest in local affairs, particularly if she is a taxpayer.

In the great west where, racial,
creed, political, sexual and social distinctions are minimized in the wide latitude of thought and action, women vote "just like men," but in the older communities men are extending the right of suffrage, hesitatingly, not grudgingly, watching the effect with apprehension. There is not a reasonable man, who believes that women are not as intelligent as men and just as capable of the right use of the ballot (Heavens help them if they were not!) But man has placed woman on a pedestal. He would keep her above sordid things, and the election is of that kind.

We see no reason, as a matter of right, why a woman should not vote.
She owns property, she claims the protection of the flag, she has sons and daughters, and is interested in the moral and political welfare of the nation.

Enthusiasts insist that women will purify the ballot and add an overwhelming reinforcement to the cause of righteousness. But in the breast of the average man there is balanced
the question, "Will women uplift politics, or will politics lower women?"

Good men go to the polls on election day and brush elbows with the rascals and the bribe taker. Give women the ballot, and will the good women go to the polls and brush elbows with the bad women? Oh, the letter will be there, just as the bad men are always there. The bad women would reinforce the corruptionists, and to counterbalance the effect of their votes and influence, the better women would have to attend the polls and vote. The bad women would work.
Would the good women find time
from their household duties to mix actively in politics?

What would be the effect on our women? It's a serious question, and it is significant that most of the women, whom we wish could vote, do not desire the franchise. They know how many votes they can control

without going to the polls, and after all, therein lies woman's opportunity to influence elections.

We are promised a vote on the tiresome Smoot question in the United States senate February 20. There is a deal of politics and a deal of religious prejudice mixed in the case,
and the real merits are not known
outside the senate committee rooms.
Fortunately, the political prejudice
involved will offset the religious prejudice, and thus justice may be done
the senator from Utah and the people. Charges were preferred against Smoot, that his obligations as an apostle in the Mormon church dis-
qualifies him to perform the duties
of a public official under the constitution and laws of the United States.
While, it is not charged that he lives
in polygamous relation, it is claimed
by his prosecutors that the church
winks at, if it does not encourage,
the practice of polygamy. This is denied, and the question becomes rather technical. It does appear from the outside that the Mormon church exercises undue influence in elections,
wherever the church predominates,
but whether the church's influence,
and Reed Smoot's relations to the church are such as to disqualify him,
is a question that most newspapers
and people will decide according to their political bent, and the intolerance of their religious belief.

GOOD ROADS STATISTICS.

According to Cotter's figures, between the beginning of 1896 and the close of 1905, New York spent out of her state treasury the sum of $50,- 000,000 in the important work of making roads good where roads had been bad, and during the same period
the counties of the state expended the same amount, making New York the leader in the work with a ten year expenditure of $100,000,000 or $10,- 000,000 per annum. Certainly that is a very large amount to spend in one year on the making of good roads—but the beauty of it is that
New York is proceeding in the work with increasing expenditures for good roads, and the farmers of the state
are exceedingly joyful over the fact,
because of the enormous saving they make in hauling their products to market, or to the railway station or to the wharves.

It is not hard to see why they rejoice. The saving a farmer would make because of good roads would immeasurably exceed the amount of taxes paid for the making of roads
as they ought to be made. Moreover the work is being done so carefully, especially with reference to the foundation, that the prospect of increased taxation for good roads grows smaller with each year.

Pennsylvania is not to be considered as out of the running in the race for good roads notwithstanding she is not up to the rank of New York.
Within the past six years she has expended from her state treasury the sum of $6,000,000. Individual cities and districts have expended in addition the sum of $1,500,000, making a six-year total of $7,500,000, a most creditable showing. In Pennsylvania, as in New York, the road tax is paid
with cheerfulness for the farmer
knows that good roads save him
largely from expenses, and the merchant knows that good roads bring the farmer to his counters and his bargains.

In all, there are nineteen out of the forty-five states giving state aid
to roads with their political subdivisions adding largely to the work
from their municipal and county treasuries.—Fulton Leader.

PINAFORE UP-TO-DATE.

The conundrum of the hour is Swettenham. Everybody is wondering what made him do it, and nobody can find out. London is as much in the dark about the matter
as Washington. You may say that it takes an Englishman to read an Englishman, but Mayfair and Whitechapel are alike as sea and Swetten-ham. He has all of them side-stepping.

In groping around for reasons why Swettenham has seized the occasion of a sober international episode to exploit himself as a Dogberry, it is surmised that his conduct was inspired by resentment of President Roosevelt's attitude toward Jamaica negroes in Panama. Others explain the incident by the president's refusal to accept British aid for San Francisco. Again, there is the notion that something revolves on a man with a name like Swettenham.

But none of these theories takes the affair out of the realm of pure conjecture. Until science evolves some plan by which experts can take a look at the inside of the heads of persons like Swettenham their acts must remain a dense mystery.

But that is no reason why some clever librettist should not seize the radiant opportunity offered by the Kingston incident to eclipse the opera of "Pinafore," the chef d'oeu-vre of Gilbert and Sullivan.—Kansas City Times.

There are many touching incidents
in the career of a chronic borrower.

BUTCHERS' SIDE
OF CONTROVERSYAre Willing to Abide by Any Reasonable RulesThey Feel Injustice Will Be Done If They Are Compelled to Move Outside.

SANITARY SLAUGHTER HOUSES.

From the viewpoint of the butchers in the city, the attitude of the two boards of health, city and county, that they cannot operate slaughter houses either in the city or county, places them in a predicament which has no choice for them. The only way out of it, if the two boards
maintain their positions, seems through a central abattoir. Discussing the question this morning from the butchers' viewpoint Mr. Charles Smith, said:

"As far as I am concerned, and I think I voice the sentiments of the other butchers, I would suggest that rigid rules for the sanitary conduct of slaughter houses be approved by the board of health and sufficiently heavy fines be imposed as a penalty
to insure the practical application of the rules. Their object is to the slaughter houses in the city, in that they are a nuisance. Large packing houses are situated in the heart of big cities and it ought to be possible to regulate them in Paducah so that they would not be objectionable.

"Take my position for instance. If I am ordered to move my slaughter house into the country two miles or more, it will necessitate my moving to the country also, because I must be near it. Connected with me are three families, which would have to move out also, and that would throw three of my houses vacant. The same thing would be necessary for many other butchers in the city.

"We have no quarrel with the members of the board of health. They doubtless are doing their duty as they see it. The only thing is, we think we have interests which it seems to be needlessly sacrificed. I want to conduct my business in a sanitary way and am willing to abide by the rules they lay down."

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST.

Recollections of Two Famous Circus
Features.

"Charlie Day originally the expression of 'the $10,000 beauty.' You hear that used pretty often, but very few persons know just where it came from. It occurred to Charlie Day's bright mind many years ago that a good advertising stunt would be to offer a prize of $10,000 for the most beautiful girl in America under the stipulation that she would allow the show to exhibit her for one year after the award of the prize.

"There were a good many catchy features to the game, as you can see for yourself. The competition was frightful, and we had the greatest difficulty in judging just who was the best out of hundreds of girls and thousands of photographs that were submitted to us. Louise Montagu was the first beauty, and we advertised her from one end of the country to the other.

"John Robinson, in his show, got
on to the same game, and played Frankie Bailey for his exhibit. He advertised her as a $10,000 beauty,
and everywhere you would go you would see a Robinson placard with this legend staring you in the face.
Frankie got a lot of free advertising
this way, but Louise was really the first $10,000 beauty." She was a peach, too.

"It's odd how the mind works,
but just after talking about the $10,- 000 beauty and Frankie Bailey, as I stand here looking at you, I think of Zip, Barnum's 'What Is It?'

"On, go ahead, don't mind me," interrupted his companion deprecatingly.
"Think ahead. I don't mind
it at all."

"No offense, no offense," said Mr.
Dawson hastily. "I was just struck with the peculiar way things came out. You would not think that the picture of old Zip should cross my mind just after I had held that of Frankie Bailey, for there wasn't any resemblance at all.

"Zip was a dinky who the show picked up down South. He shaved off much of his hair, whitened his eyebrows, blacked the hollows under his eyes, hung a ring from his nose,
and then put chains on him and turned him loose.

"There was a great stunt we had in small towns where we wanted to attract interest in the side show. The press agent would go into the tent
where the 'wild man' was kept.
There would be frightful snarling and rattling of chains, and then whoop-la! Under the canvas there would come Zip with a demoniac countenance and yell that would stir a hyena
to emulation. Then the press agent would stagger out with his clothing
all rumpled and awry.

"Stop him! My God, stop him!"
he would yell, throwing his hands
up in the air, and then the show
hands, who were ready for the game,
would rush out from behind wagons
and tents and give glad pursuit.

"At last they would get up close to the wild man and some fleet person would make a daring tackle.
Then all the show hands would come running up, eager for a chance to jump on Zip. It was worse than a football game.

"The rubes, of course, for whose benefit this was all done, were usually by this time either miles up the country making record-breaking time
or rooting in tall trees as if a hull were after them. From the heap of circus men on the ground Zip would at last emerge, and, held firmly by his broken chains and frothing at the mouth, he would be led back to durance ville.

"We used to pay him $1 per day
extra for every time we did this stunt,
and it was worth it. It was a sight for sore eyes to see the joyous way in which those circus men jumped on him when once they got him to the ground. They did it with a wild abandon that would have deeply wounded Zip's sensibilities if he hadn't been so busy looking out for his physical welfare."—Baltimore Sun.

Why the Whites Object So Strongly

The Japanese coolie whom men

an unskilled laborer. He is a cobbler, tailor, gardener, cook, waiter, or one or other of a dozen classes of workmen, as the case may be. He can,
and does live just as cheaply as the Chinaman. A handful of rice, a little dried fish and a cup of tea make a square meal for him. And we feel convinced that if he be allowed to come to these shores in undiminished numbers he will ultimately drive
the latter elected to establish

WOMAN'S RIGHTS.
 Pending in the Illinois legislature, is a measure, extending the franchise to women, except in elections of judges. Indiana's female suffrage bill comprehends all town and city elections. Ohio permits women to vote for school trustees. Why women should be allowed to vote at all, and then be restricted in the right of suffrage, is beyond the ken of logical intellect. The Illinois law idea is almost insulting, as though under pressure the men would permit the women to vote, but to preserve the purity of the judiciary, except it from the wholesome surrender. In Ohio it would appear that the very opposite is the intention, and the hope of bettering the school situation prompted the legislature to invite feminine participation in the selection of the trustees. Indiana solons, no doubt, think woman's sphere has sufficiently broadened under the freedom of our institutions to awaken an interest in local affairs, particularly if she is a taxpayer.

In the great west where, racial, creed, political, sexual and social distinctions are minimized in the wide latitude of thought and action, women vote "just like men," but in the older communities men are extending the right of suffrage, hesitatingly, not grudgingly, watching the effect with apprehension. There is not a reasonable man, who believes that women are not as intelligent as men and just as capable of the right use of the ballot (Heavens help them if they were not!) But man has placed woman on a pedestal. He would keep her above social things, and the election is of that kind.

We see no reason, as a matter of right, why a woman should not vote. She owns property, she claims the protection of the flag, she has sons and daughters, and is interested in the moral and political welfare of the nation.

Enthusiasts insist that women will purify the ballot and add an overwhelming reinforcement to the cause of righteousness. But in the breast of the average man there is balanced the question, "Will women uplift politics, or will politics lower women?"

Good men go to the polls on election day and brush elbows with the rascal and the bribe taker. Give women the ballot, and with the good women go to the polls and brush elbows with the bad women? Oh, the latter will be there, just as the bad men are always there. The bad women would reinforce the corruptionists, and to counterbalance the effect of their votes and influence, the better women would have to attend the polls and vote. The bad women would work. Would the good women find time from their household duties to mix actively in politics?

What would be the effect on our women? It's a serious question, and it is significant that most of the women, whom we wish could vote, do not desire the franchise. They know how many votes they can control without going to the polls, and after all, therein lies woman's opportunity to influence elections.

We are promised a vote on the threesome Smoot question in the United States senate February 20. There is a deal of politics and a deal of religious prejudice mixed in the case, and the real merits are not known outside the senate committee rooms. Fortunately, the political prejudice involved will offset the religious prejudice, and thus justice may be done the senator from Utah and the people. Charges were preferred against Smoot, that his obligations as an apostle in the Mormon church disqualifies him to perform the duties of a public official under the constitution and laws of the United States. While, it is not charged that he lives in polygamous relation, it is claimed by his prosecutors that the church winks at, if it does not encourage, the practice of polygamy. This is denied, and the question becomes rather technical. It does appear from the outside that the Mormon church exercises undue influence in elections, wherever the church predominates, but whether the church's influence, and Reed Smoot's relations to the church are such as to disqualify him, is a question that most newspapers and people will decide according to their political bent, and the intolerance of their religious belief.

GOOD ROADS STATISTICS.
 According to Collier's figures, between the beginning of 1896 and the close of 1905, New York spent out of her state treasury the sum of $50,000,000 in the important work of making roads good where roads had been bad, and during the same period the counties of the state expended the same amount, making New York the leader in the work with a ten year expenditure of $100,000,000 or $10,000,000 per annum. Certainly that is a very large amount to spend in one year on the making of good roads—but the beauty of it is that New York is proceeding in the work with increasing expenditures for good roads, and the farmers of the state are exceedingly joyful over the fact because of the enormous saving they make in hauling their products to market, or to the railway station or to the wharfbanks.

It is not hard to see why they rejoice. The saving a farmer would make because of good roads would immeasurably exceed the amount of taxes paid for the making of roads as they ought to be made. Moreover the work is being done so carefully, especially with reference to the foundation, that the prospect of increased taxation for good roads grows smaller with each year.

Pennsylvania is not to be considered as out of the running in the race for good roads notwithstanding she is not up to the rank of New York. Within the past six years she has expended from her state treasury the sum of $6,000,000. Individual cities and districts have expended in addition the sum of $1,500,000, making a six-year total of $7,500,000, a most creditable showing. In Pennsylvania, as in New York, the road tax is paid with cheerfulness for the farmer knows that good roads save him largely from expenses, and the merchant knows that good roads bring the farmer to his counters and his bargains.

In all, there are nineteen out of the forty-five states giving state aid to roads with their political subdivisions adding largely to the work from their municipal and county treasuries.—Fulton Leader.

In groping around for reasons why Sweetenham has seized the occasion of a sober international episode to exploit himself as a Dogberry, it is surmised that his conduct was inspired by resentment of President Roosevelt's attitude toward Jimmalcan negroes in Panama. Others explain the incident by the president's refusal to accept British aid for San Francisco. Again, there is the notion that something devolves on a man with a name like Sweetenham.

But none of these theories takes the affair out of the realm of pure conjecture. Until science evolves some plan by which experts can take a look at the inside of the heads of persons like Sweetenham their acts must remain a dense mystery.

But that is no reason why some clever librettist should not seize the radiant opportunity offered by the Kingston incident to eclipse the opera of "Pinafore," the chef d'oeuvre of Gilbert and Sullivan.—Kansas City Times.

BUTCHERS' SIDE OF CONTROVERSY

Are Willing to Abide by Any Reasonable Rules

They Feel Injustice Will Be Done If They Are Compelled to Move Outside.

SANITARY SLAUGHTER HOUSES.

From the viewpoint of the butchers in the city, the attitude of the two boards of health, city and county, that they cannot operate slaughter houses either in the city or county, places them in a predicament which has no choice for them. The only way out of it, if the two boards maintain their positions, seems through a central abattoir. Discussing the question this morning from the butchers' viewpoint Mr. Charles Smith, said:

"As far as I am concerned, and I think I voice the sentiments of the other butchers, I would suggest that rigid rules for the sanitary conduct of slaughter houses be approved by the board of health and sufficiently heavy fines be imposed as a penalty to insure the practical application of the rules. Their objection to the slaughter houses in the city, is that they are a nuisance. Large packing houses are situated in the heart of big cities and it ought to be possible to regulate them in Paducah so that they would not be objectionable.

"Take my position for instance. If I am ordered to move my slaughter house into the country two miles or more, it will necessitate my moving to the country also, because I must be near it. Connected with me are three families, which would have to move out also, and that would throw three of my houses vacant. The same thing would be necessary for many other butchers in the city.

"We have no quarrel with the members of the board of health. They doubtless are doing their duty as they see it. The only thing is, we think we have interests which it seems are being needlessly sacrificed. I want to conduct my business in a sanitary way and am willing to abide by the rules they lay down."

BEAUTY AND THE BEAST.

Recollections of Two Famous Circus Features.

"Charlie Day originally the expression of the '10,000 beauty.' You hear that used pretty often, but very few persons know just where it came from. It occurred to Charlie Day's bright mind many years ago that a good advertising stunt would be to offer a prize of $10,000 for the most beautiful girl in America under the stipulation that she would allow the show to exhibit her for one year after the award of the prize.

"There were a good many catchy features to the game, as you can see for yourself. The competition was frightful, and we had the greatest difficulty in judging just who was the best out of hundreds of girls and thousands of photographs that were submitted to us. Louise Montagu was the first beauty, and we advertised her from one end of the country to the other.

"John Robinson, in his show, got on to the same game, and played Frankie Bailey for his exhibit. He advertised her as a '10,000 beauty,' and everywhere you would go you would see a Robinson placard with this legend staring you in the face. Frankie got a lot of free advertising this way, but Louise was really the first '10,000 beauty.' She was a peach, too.

"It's odd how the mind works, but just after talking about the '10,000 beauty' and Frankie Bailey, as I stand here looking at you, I think of Zip, Barnum's 'What Is It?'

"On, go ahead, don't mind me," interrupted his companion deprecatingly. "Think ahead. I don't mind it at all."

"No offense, no offense," said Mr. Dawson hastily. "I was just struck with the peculiar way things came out. You would not think that the picture of old Zip should cross my mind just after it had held that of Frankie Bailey, for there wasn't any resemblance at all."

"Zip was a darky who the show

picked up down South. We shaved off much of his hair, whitened his eyebrows, blacked the hollows under his eyes, hung a ring from his nose, and then put chains on him and turned him loose.

"There was a great stunt we had in small towns where we wanted to stir up interest in the side show. The press agent would go into the tent where the 'wild man' was kept. There would be frightful snarling and rattling of chains, and then whoop-ia! Under the canvas there would come Zip with a demoniac countenance and yell that would stir a hyena to emulation. Then the press agent would stagger out with his clothing all rumpled and awry.

"Stop him! My God, stop him!" he would yell, throwing his hands up in the air, and then the show hands, who were ready for the game, would rush out from behind wagons and tents and give glad pursuit.

"At last they would get up close to the wild man and some fleet person would make a daring tackle. Then all the show hands would come running up, eager for a chance to jump on Zip. It was worse than a football game.

"The rubes, of course, for whose benefit this was all done, were usually by this time either miles up the country making record-breaking time or roosting in tall trees as if a bull were after them. From the heap of circus men on the ground Zip would at last emerge, and held firmly by his broken chains and frothing at the mouth, he would be led back to durance vile.

"We used to pay him $1 per day extra for every time we did this stunt, and it was worth it. It was a sight for sore eyes to see the joyous way in which those circus men jumped on him when once they got him to the ground. They did it with a wild abandon that would have deeply wounded Zip's sensibilities if he hadn't been so busy looking out for his physical welfare."—Baltimore Sun.

Absent-Minded.
 Representative Mann of Illinois, is absent-minded, so much so that it bothers him a great deal.

"I can't explain it," he told Representative Boutelle, "but it worries me a great deal."

"Oh! you are not absent-minded," Boutelle said. "An absent-minded man is one who thinks he has left his watch at home and then pulls it out of his pocket to see if he has time enough to go home and get it."

JAPS IN CALIFORNIA.

Why the Whites Object So Strongly to the Little Brown Men.

The Japanese coolie who comes to California, for the most part, is not an unskilled laborer. He is a cobbler, tailor, gardener, cook, waiter, or one or other of a dozen classes of workmen, as the case may be. He can, and does live just as cheaply as the Chinaman. A handful of rice, a little dried fish and a cup of tea make a square meal for him. And we feel convinced that if he be allowed to come to these shores in undiminished numbers he will ultimately drive the latter elected to establish themselves in one of the most de-irable residence sections of San Francisco. They would offer the landlords twice and thrice the amounts they were being paid by white tenants and after the latter had been dispossessed would open Japanese boarding houses with swarms of occupants in those desirable residences. When the white man saw he was being ousted to make way for the Orientals it did not serve to establish a more cordial relationship between the races. One must also bear in mind that at this time, by reason of the conflagration, houses for rent were exceedingly scarce, and many of the families thus dispossessed had to seek homes on the other side of the Bay of San Francisco.—Julius Kahn, in the Independent.

IN THE COURTS

Circuit Court.

The Evansville Pressed Brick company this morning secured a verdict for $10,180.80 against Edward Bridges, of Wabash, Ind., for a balance owing on brick. Bridges was given damages against the brick company in the sum of $1,000. The Evansville firm sold Bridges brick with which to pave Paducah streets. Orders were delayed and Bridges suffered loss of time and money, he claims. Refusing to pay a claim of $11,180.80 balance on the brick shipments, he was sued, and filed a counter claim of $12,000 damages for delays. The evidence consumed all of yesterday. The jury returned a verdict this morning, giving Bridges $1,000 damages, and a verdict to the brick firm for all sued for above that amount.

J. W. Jackson against the Paducah Traction company in which Jackson received a verdict for $100 damages, defendant filed a motion with reasons for a new trial.

Max B. Nahm against F. W. Katterjohn is on trial. Mr. Katterjohn put an additional story on the Columbia building owned by Mr. Nahm and rain came through while the roof was off damaging the Register newspaper plant. The proprietor of the newspaper recovered damages from Mr. Nahm.

Slits Filed.

The Continental Insurance company against W. A. McClure and others, to enforce a lien on property to secure a judgment for $113.50 heretofore rendered.

J. H. Crouch against W. B. Smith for $5,000. The petition states the two were in partnership in manufacturing telegraph pole crossarms, and after dissolution, January 1, 1907, Smith refused to settle.

In Bankruptcy.

W. D. Melton, of Bandana, has been summoned to appear before Federal Judge Walter Evans at Louisville February 7 and show cause why he should not be forced into bankruptcy. Several firms, Frank Bros., this city, among them, filed a petition asking that Melton be forced into bankruptcy.

Wade Brown, Deputy U. S. marshal, went to Smithland today to serve papers on Jesse D. Foley summoning him to appear before Federal Judge Walter Evans February 9 and show cause why he should not be thrown into bankruptcy. Marshal Brown will then go to Hampton, Livingston county, to serve papers in the bankrupt case of J. H. Nelson & Sons.

Cecil Reed, trustee in bankruptcy of John Briffinger, of Gilbertsville, Marshall county, sold a gasoline boat at private sale yesterday to Thomas McCulloch, of Gilbertsville, for $750.

Federal Court.

The West Kentucky Coal company has filed suit in federal court against the Cumberland River Mining company for $1,000, the value of a barge. Last summer the towing company rented a barge from the coal company and it was sunk in Cumberland river in tow by the Terre Haute.

In Police Court.

The names of Will Beckenbach, J. H. Robertson and Robert Harris, white, charged with drunkenness, were the only ones entered on the police arrest blotter, and Special Judge J. S. Ross being busy at circuit court, no police court was held today.

Deeds Filed.

W. H. Hudson, administrator, to H. W. Rankin, power of attorney. Lizzie Lena Greif to The Woman's club of Paducah, property on Kentucky avenue near Sixth street, $4,000.

Alfred Boyd to Henry Beach, property on the Cairo road, $140.

PADUCAH'S RECRUITS.

This Sub-Station Ranks With Cities Having Headquarters.

Though only a sub-station, Paducah ranks along with the districts themselves which include several sub-stations. In the record for recruiting soldiers for the army in January. Sergeant Blako had 27 recruits accepted in January out of 55 applicants. Unofficially it is known that the nearest approach to Paducah's record in the Evansville district is Mt. Vernon with seven recruits. It is the biggest month on record here. It may be that Paducah will grow to a size that will entitle it to being made a district itself with headquarters here and several sub-stations. Lieut. W. L. Redd accepted three men yesterday. They were J. L. Lowry, Dycusburg, hospital corps; Claude Pidcock, Princeton, and Cyril Miller, Golden Pond, for the Philippine service.

CHILDREN'S HOME SOCIETY.

Mr. Hutchens in Paducah Collecting Funds for It.

Mr. John W. Hutchens, district superintendent of the Kentucky Children's Home Society, Louisville, Ky., arrived last night for a ten days' stay in Paducah. He is here to collect the annual contribution from Paducahans who give annually as high as $25. Supt. Hutchens stated: "I have been sent here instead of Dr. F. W. Bruner, who has been collecting in Paducah for several years. We have taken in about 20 children from Paducah since we started the home, and have met with the greatest of encouragement and success everywhere."

Gives Up Old Home.

Mrs. Elizabeth Greif left last night for Columbus, Miss., to make her home with her daughter, Mrs. Lee Shanks, formerly Miss Maud Greif of this city. Mrs. Greif is a well known resident of Paducah and has lived for 36 years at the old Greif home on Kentucky avenue, lately bought by the Woman's club. She is the widow of Martin Greif, and has many strong friends in Paducah who regret her departure.

NATURE AS A RECONSTRUCTOR.

"Nature repairs her ravages—repairs them with her sunshine and with human labor."

Osteopathy is one of Nature's most used instruments in repairing her ravages. Take the Osteopathic treatment of headaches. It locates the primary cause and removes it, not in administering a common known sedative to on- and all alike, but by a simple mechanical manipulation.

So, in digestive disorders Osteopathy restores the nervous equilibrium to the stomach, bowels, liver, pancreas, etc., and a unity of action established the disorders are readily controlled and cured.

Constipation can be cured only by observing nature's laws. The regular movements of the bowels depend on their nerve and blood supply. If one or the other is disturbed in any way there is disorder—sickness. Osteopathy here again is Nature's cure.

I should like to tell you personally at any time of the great success I am having with the treatment and refer you to some of your friends who will eagerly attest to what Osteopathy is doing or has done for them. Phone me at 1407 at any time.

Circuit Court.

The Evansville Pressed Brick company this morning secured a verdict for $10,180.80 against Edward Bridges, of Wabash, Ind., for a balance owing on brick. Bridges was given damages against the brick company in the sum of $1,000. The Evansville firm sold Bridges brick with which to pave Paducah streets. Orders were delayed and Bridges suffered loss of time and money, he claims. Refusing to pay a claim of $11,180.80 balance on the brick shipments, he was sued, and filed a counter claim of $12,000 damages for delays. The evidence consumed all of yesterday. The jury returned a verdict this morning, giving Bridges $1,000 damages, and a verdict to the brick firm for all sued for above that amount.

J. W. Jackson against the Paducah Traction company in which Jackson received a verdict for $100 damages, defendant filed a motion with reasons for a new trial.

Max B. Nahn against F. W. Katterjohn in trial. Mr. Katterjohn put an additional story on the Columbia building owned by Mr. Nahn and rain came through while the roof was off damaging the Register newspaper plant. The proprietor of the newspaper recovered damages from Mr. Nahn.

Suits Filed.

The Continental Insurance company against W. A. McClure and others, to enforce a lien on property to secure a judgment for $113.50 heretofore rendered.

J. H. Crouch against W. B. Smith for $5,000. The petition states the two were in partnership in manufacturing telegraph pole crossarms, and after dissolution, January 1, 1907, Smith refused to settle.

In Bankruptcy.

W. D. Melton, of Bandana, has been summoned to appear before Federal Judge Walter Evans at Louisville February 7 and show cause why he should not be forced into bankruptcy. Several firms, Hank Bros., this city, among them, filed a petition asking that Melton be forced into bankruptcy.

Wade Brown, Deputy U. S. marshal, went to Smithland today to serve papers on Jesse D. Foley summoning him to appear before Federal Judge Walter Evans February 9 and show cause why he should not be thrown into bankruptcy. Marshal Brown will then go to Hampton, Livingston county, to serve papers in the bankrupt case of J. H. Nelson & Sons.

Cecil Reed, trustee in bankruptcy of John Ballinger, of Gilbertsville, Marshall county, sold a gasoline boat at private sale yesterday to Thomas McCulloch, of Gilbertsville, for $750.

Federal Court.

The West Kentucky Coal company has filed suit in federal court against the Cumberland River Mining company for $1,000, the value of a barge. Last summer the towing company rented a barge from the coal company and it was sunk in Cumberland river in tow by the Terre Haute.

In Police Court.

The names of Will Beckenbach, J. H. Robertson and Robert Harris, white, charged with drunkenness, were the only ones entered on the police arrest blotter, and Special Judge J. S. Ross being busy at circuit court, no police court was held today.

Deeds Filed.

W. H. Hudson, administrator, to H. W. Rankin, power of attorney. Lizzie Lepa Grelf to The Woman's club of Paducah, property on Kentucky avenue near Sixth street, $4,000.

Alfred Boyd to Henry Beauchamp, property on the Cairo road, $140.

PADUCAH'S RECRUITS.

This Sub-Station Ranks With Cities Having Headquarters.
Though only a sub-station, Paducah ranks along with the districts themselves which include several sub-stations, in the record for recruiting soldiers for the army in January. Sergeant Blake had 27 recruits accepted in January out of 55 applicants. Unofficially it is known that the nearest approach to Paducah's record in the Evansville district is Mt. Vernon with seven recruits. It is the biggest month on record here. It may be that Paducah will grow to a size that will entitle it to being made a district itself with headquarters here and several sub-stations. Lieut. W. L. Redd accepted three men yesterday. They were J. L. Lowry, Dyessburg, hospital corps; Claude Pidcock, Princeton, and Cyril Miller, Golden Pond, for the Philippine service.

WANT ADS.

It wouldn't pay for a merchant to advertise unless he could always make it pay you to read his advertisements.

Included among those who will read your want ad, are probably two-thirds of the people to whom your proposition would appeal. The other third of them can probably be reached by subsequent insertions.

You—if you are a merchant—should write more for publication than any "popular author" or journalist. And even if you write less than the average literary author you probably have a greater number of readers, in this city, than any of them.

COLD STORAGE

PRODUCTS DETERIORATE AFTER SO LONG A TIME.

Dr. Wiley, Chief of Chemistry Bureau, Department of Agriculture, Talks.

Washington, Jan. 31.—There is a limit to the time food may be kept in cold storage, and with some articles deterioration begins at once, according to Dr. Harvey W. Wiley, chief of the chemistry bureau and the government's pure food expert. Dr. Wiley's testimony before the house committee on agriculture during the hearings on the agricultural appropriation bill, were made public today. Two cold storage warehouses are at Dr. Wiley's disposal in Washington, and he gave the results he has attained by experiments with all sorts of foodstuffs.

"Milk begins to deteriorate right away, and so does cream," said Dr. Wiley. "Eggs also begin to deteriorate immediately. Fruit is improved and sometimes continues to improve for 3 months. Meats improve up to about six or eight weeks. But after three months for meat you can see that it has reached the maximum, and then it begins to go down. I do not care how hard it is frozen.

"We find that meats do not taste as well and they do not smell as well, and every time the jury can pick that which has been kept over three months. Take our quail. We have quail a year old and we have a fresh quail cooked at the same time. We cook them just alike, and you can distinguish between them, first by their looks, and then by smell and taste. Every time the jury can pick them out blindfolded."

Dr. Wiley stated that he is a thorough believer in cold storage and believes that most foods improve when properly kept for a short time, but he said the object of his experiments is to tell the public, and particularly the cold storage people, how long they may safely keep articles of food in storage. He said that as yet he has been unable to determine whether drawn or undrawn poultry keeps better.

MCCLELLAN LANDS ONE.

Takes Away a Bit of Graft From Tammany Men.

New York, Jan. 31.—The Murphy Contracting company received a hard blow from the city administration today. Dock Commissioner Bensen notified the New York Trucking and Contracting company that its permit for the use of the dumping board at Twenty-first street and East river had been canceled and that the city would take possession on February 1st.

John J. Murphy, a brother of Charles F. Murphy, the Tammany leader, is president of the company, and the commissioners' action is supposed to be a part of Mayor McClellan's war on the Democratic boss. The Murphy concern paid $100 a month rental for the dumping board, and then charged the city by the load for the use of it. It will be brought out at the street cleaning investigation that the city was paying $12,000 a year to the Murphy concern for the use of this dumping board and the one at Seventy-ninth street.

The Work of the X-Ray.

The invaluable X-ray has again saved a human life in a remarkable manner after medical skill, unaided by the Roentgen discovery, had been utterly baffled. A two and one-half inch nail, which for nine months had been imbedded in the bronchial tube of Isidor Berkowitz of 40 Forsyth street, was removed by surgeons of the Beth Israel hospital as soon as they had located it with the rays.

During the nine months doctors pronounced the throat clear, yet the child had intermittent convulsions and grasped madly at his neck and chest. The case was a puzzle until Dr. Francis Hilder decided to employ the rays. He saw the nail clearly, and on November 21 performed a delicate operation. Nothing was made public about the case until yesterday, when the surgeon announced that the boy had recovered completely and would be out today.—New York American.

Gov. Sweetenham, of Jamaica, who is 61 years of age, was married in the summer of 1905 to Miss Mary Copeland, of Kibblesleepe Hall, Staffordsire, England.

Some Reasons Why Average Proof Reader Should be Shown no Quarter

The late Julian Ralph used to tell with a mixture of annoyance and amusement of a curious thing that the telegraph operators the printers, and the proofreaders once did to him. Mr. Ralph was at one time at Saratoga during the height of the season when William C. Whitney's enterprise had put new life into the racing and when Canfield's gambling establishment ran wide open and was one of the sights of the town. He had written an article for a New York newspaper in which he gave character sketches of Messrs. Whitney and Canfield, describing them as each in his different way, the two big men of Saratoga.

After calling one evening on Mr. Canfield the correspondent came away and wrote, among other things, that Mr. Canfield wore evening dress, a ruffled shirt, and talked of Oriental ceremonies. When it got into type it read: "Mr. Canfield wore an evening dress, a ruffled shirt, and talked of Oriental ceremonies."

Mr. Ralph was somewhat chagrined but Mr. Canfield was highly delighted.

"But people will certainly think me eccentric," said he.

Despite the staff of highly trained proofreaders that every big printing establishment maintains for the express purpose of preventing it, errors no less absurd are constantly being allowed to go forth to an amused public. Even in the case of books it occasionally occurs, and many an edition of a famous work takes on greater value in the eyes of collectors because as the booksellers' catalogue so often reads, "of a curious typographical error on page 319."

Such an error occurred in a volume of fiction brought out recently by one of the oldest and most successful of New York's publishing houses. "She twirled about so suddenly," the unfortunate author is made to say, "that her blue-stockinged ankles twinkled momentarily in the sunlight," which was a manifest injustice to the sweet girl and a heroine.

One whose interest in all things humorous has induced him to gather a collection of errors such as these that have appeared in various newspapers holds the belief that the dramatic and book reviewers are more frequently victimized than any other writers for the daily press. He also holds that error is often so much truer than the thing that was written that it deserves applause and not reproach. Here is such an example:

"Lady Virginia, wife of an unworthy commissioner sent out by Charles II., seems more genuine and wears vanishing costumes that suggest Mrs. Patrick Campbell." Substitute "ravishing" for "vanishing" and you have the original, but is it an improvement?

"The stage setting," another reviewer was made to say, "is the familiar one of the huge castle with secret stairways, hangings or arras, and floors strewn with sweethearts." Of course the floor covering was not sweethearts, but sweet herbs.

Scarcely less amazing was it to read that "her last venture was a thousand mile trip to Moscow including the Atlas Mountains." If you substitute Morocco for Moscow the geography becomes impeccable. Nor could one be other than surprised to read of this feat made remarkable by an error in just one letter.

"Last night Matthews, mounted on a house, drove into the dynamo section of the Utes Gas and Electric Company's plant, and, putting spurs to the animal galloped around."

The reader would not be very likely to see anything wrong in the statement that "a special committee of three was appointed to prepare a sizzling reply tomorrow." But it wasn't "tomorrow" really; it was to Mr. Orr.

One might seek in vain, though, the justification for using a large headline to announce the fact that the "Lotos Club Dines Monday" were it not for the circumstance that the article itself told that it was the historic Morley who was dined.

Some of the most absurd effects are achieved, as has been seen, by the omission of a single letter, but the following instance in an article, telling how to raise turkeys is one in which absurdity and accuracy are by no means inconsistent: "Once past the chick stage there is no general morality among them, snive about Thanksgiving and Christmas week."

All that read that "Father Belford has tried for nearly three years to relieve the congregation of his church on Sundays" probably wondered if shorter sermons wouldn't do it. How could they know it was not really the congregation, but the congregation that needed relief? And they doubtless were amazed to learn that a certain apartment was "furnished with an odd jumble of Japanese languages and Turkish rugs." Read "hangings" for "languages."

John D. Rockefeller, Jr., has received a great deal of attention in the newspapers, but probably no reported statement of his has ever more surprised the people than this one: "And let me say to you," continued Mr. Rockefeller, "that no one here needs funds more than he who is now speaking to you."

What young Mr. Rockefeller really said he needed was friends, which is not half so surprising.

Once more the unlucky book reviewer comes up in this collection of errors. He was made to refer to the "complete political works of William Wordsworth" whose complete works were, of course, poetical. Scarcely less sad was the announcement that "Edward Gay's Silver Birchies brought out the most spiritual bidding of the evening."

But isn't always that the compositor is to blame. Sometimes he patently improves upon the copy. For example, who shall say that the compositor responsible for this statement was not gifted with something like intuition: "He came East last week and wrote to his fiancée that he would call upon her Thursday evening."

Readers of the unjoined paragraph might well be pardoned for wondering why the mischief the church should be held responsible for the conditions of anybody's teeth: "Unfortunately, the church has not always exhibited a like jealousy for the preservation of the reputation of the holy office for consistent purity of morals." But the transposition of three letters clears up the mystery.

It was a pity that the reporter didn't really mean to say: "The city charter makes no provision for such an offense as corporation inspector." But unfortunately "once" was what he wrote.

For the error the compositor must take the blame, as well as for referring to Amelia Rives as the author of "The Quicker the Dead," and for the announcement that "Mrs. Peary, with her little daughter, has excluded herself on an island in Casco Bay." He, too, it was who described an immigrant peasant as a "pretty Russian pennant girl," but he can scarcely be blamed for the statement that "Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth has planned a reunion at Hope Hall, Plus'az, for the ex-convicts who have reformed under her influence and their families."

Strange and barbarous forms of oppression on the part of the employers are hinted at in this weird paragraph: Messrs. — & — gave a Christmas theater party on Saturday afternoon and untied their entire force to see the "Wizard of Oz." Of course, the employees didn't have to be untied. They were merely invited.

For the statement that "the weather was general yesterday," it is hard to know whom to blame. Well, let the blame go—"fair weather" is what was intended.

Those counterfeited presentiments of strawberries and apples and grapes that look "natural enough to eat" are all very well, but one example from this odd collection far outdoes them. In a description of how a fire in a waste basket was extinguished the statement was made: "The porters then doused the thing with pictures of water." Truly, art is great.

There was no intention to imply a bar sinister when a certain newspaper said: "Her great-great-grandfather on the matrimonial side was an officer in the English army." It should have read the "maternal side," which would have made it perfectly proper. Again, it may be perfectly true, as another newspaper said, that "It is the young policeman who all his life is to lead him into excesses," but it was originally intended to lay the blame on the officer's zeal, not on his sweetheart.

One can imagine the annoyance of the racing reporter who was trying to describe a close finish, but only succeeded in getting this statement into print: "Kingsland beat him twice the first time by less than a week in a dingdong drive." And yet neck doesn't seem to look so much like work.

It was a sad mix-up when the compositor said: "The houseboat appeals to the artistic and the observant. Any fool can like a dog." It was the intention of the writer to glorify the humble house cat.

It was also Murphy's illness that caused the quarantine, but this is how it read in print: "The seventy strike breakers were held there until the cause of Murphy's illness should develop."

And the literary editor must have been a sure enough angel if he didn't curse when he read in his column: "With thought with the ideal is immortal hilarity. 'The Rose of Joy!' Round it all the Nurses sing." Nor could he have been much happier when he saw Shelley's "Ode to a Skylark" paraphrased as "Old Da Shylark." However, "hell" looks enough like "here" to account for "But you cannot wear an overcoat in hell," said the waiter. "It is not allowed."

Substituting a "j" for an "i" accounts for this announcement: "These meetings will be continued at the earnest request of a number of the jaymen who are interested in the services." A cognate instance was furnished in an Albany report, which said: "An effort will then be made to jaw it 'rough the senate."

But the really surprising thing is not that there are mistakes of this kind, but that there are so few. So much newspaper work is done late at night and in the greatest haste that the scarcity of errors in the completed publication speaks for the intelligence and devotion of the men who make the papers.—Washington Post.

"Will you guarantee," asked the solemn-looking customer, "that there is no whisky in this patent medicine?" "Absolutely," responded the conscientious druggist. "Then," resumed the man, "you can keep it." "But," hastily added the druggist, "there's plenty of the stuff they used to call whisky before the government found a new name for it." The deal went through.

Tact is the ability to make people give you what you want in such a way as to make them think you are giving them something.

Kidney Disease

Nature has given you kidneys to keep your blood clean and pure. As the blood flows through them the waste matter it brings from all over your body is filtered out through millions of little tubes, so small that they can be seen only under a microscope. Unless these tiny tubes are kept open, waste matter accumulates in your blood.

If the blood is chilled in any part of your body, or held back by pressure or injury, uric acid turns into little crystals, resembling sharp grains of fine sand. Over-feeding also may produce so much waste matter that your blood can't keep the uric acid dissolved, and the crystals are formed. Your kidneys cannot pass these crystals—they lodge and collect in the little filtering tubes, where they scratch and irritate the tender fibres, just as grains of sand would do in your eye. This irritation causes the pain in your back which warns you of kidney disease, Bright's Disease and death.

At the very first sign of kidney disease, you must take LIFE PLANT. LIFE PLANT has the power of dissolving the hard uric acid grains, being provided by Nature for just that purpose. You will feel relief from the first, and in a short time LIFE PLANT will have gently washed every trace of uric acid out of your kidneys (or wherever else it may exist) and give the organ back its blood-purifying powers. Thousands have saved themselves by taking LIFE PLANT. Read what Mr. John Lemon, of Wadsworth, Ohio, says:

"In regard to your medicine, I think it can't be best in the world. Once I was so bad that I could not walk. I took one bottle and can say that I feel all right. My kidneys troubled me and I was dizzy in my head. That has about all left me. I think one more bottle will fix me all right. I can't say too much for Life Plant."

If you have any trouble whatever, write your symptoms to I. J. Mizer, M. D., President of the Life Plant Co., who will send you his personal advice, free. Our book—GOOD HEALTH—mailed to anyone free on request.

"But manhandling," she said reproachfully, "when you have such nice hands. It was your hands and your eyes, you know, that first appealed to me." She sighed gently, with a touch of sentimental reminiscence. "And I thought it so strong of you not to wear rings. It must be such a temptation." She looked down at her own fingers, glittering with jewels.

But the momentary pleasure of her touch was gone. Chilcote drew away his hand and picked up the book that lay between them.

"Other Men's Shoes," he read. "A novel, of course?"

She smiled. "Of course. Such a fantastic story—two men changing identities."

Chilcote rose and walked back to the mantelpiece.

"Charming identities," he said, with a touch of interest.

"Yes. One man is an artist, the other a millionaire. One wants to know what fame is like, the other wants to know how it feels to be really richly rich. So they exchange experiences for a month." She laughed.

Chilcote laughed as well. "But how?" he asked.

"Oh, I told you the idea was absurd. Fancy two people so much alike that neither their friends nor their servants see any difference! Such a thing couldn't be, could it?"

Chilcote looked down at the fire. "No," he said doubtfully. "No. I suppose not."

"Of course not. There are likenesses, but not freak likenesses like that."

Chilcote's head was bent as he spoke, but at the last words he lifted it.

"By Jove! I don't know about that!" he said. "Not so very long ago I saw two men so much alike that I—I—"

He stopped.

Lillian smiled.

He colored quickly. "You doubt me?" he asked.

"My dear Jack!" Her voice was delicately reproachful.

"Then you think that my—my imagination has been playing me tricks?"

"My dear boy! Nothing of the kind. Come back to your place and tell me the whole tale!" She smiled again, and patted the couch invitingly.

But Chilcote's balance had been upset. For the first time he saw Lillian as one of the watchful, suspicious crowd before which he was constantly on guard. Acting on the sensation, he moved suddenly toward the door.

"I—I have an appointment at the house," he said quickly. "I'll look in another day when—I'm better company. I know I'm a bear today. My nerves, you know." He came back to the couch and took her hand. Then he touched her cheek for an instant with his fingers.

"Goodbye," he said. "Take care of yourself—and the kitten." He nodded with forced gaiety, as he crossed the room.

That afternoon Chilcote's nervous condition reached its height. All day he had avoided the climax, but no evasion could be eternal, and this he realized as he sat in his place on the opposition benches during the half hour of wintry twilight that precedes the turning on of the lights. He realized it in that half hour, but the application of the knowledge followed later, when the time came for him to question the government on some point relating to the proposed additional dry dock at Tulkey, the naval base. Then for the first time he knew that the sufferings of the past months could have a visible as well as a hidden side—could disorganize his daily routine as he had already demoralized his will and character.

The thing came upon him with extraordinary lack of preparation. He sat through the twilight with tolerable calm, his nervousness showing only in the occasional lifting of his hand to his collar and the frequent clanging of his position, but when the lights were turned on and he leaned back in his seat with closed eyes he became conscious of a curious impression—a disturbing idea that through his closed lids he could see the faces on the opposite side of the house, see the raw eyes, sleep, interested or vigilant.

Never before had the sensation presented itself, but once set up it ran through all his susceptibilities. By an absurd freak of fancy those varying eyes seemed to pierce through his lids, almost through his eyeballs. The cold perspiration that was his daily horror broke out on his forehead, and at the same moment Fraide, his leader, turned, leaned over the back of his seat and touched his knee.

Chilcote started and opened his eyes. "I—I believe I was dozing," he said confusedly.

Fraide smiled his dry, kindly smile. "A fatal admission for a member of the opposition," he said. "But I was looking for you earlier in the day, Chilcote. There is something behind this Persian affair. I believe it to be a mere first move on Russia's part. You big trading people will find it worth watching."

Chilcote shrugged his shoulders. "Oh, I don't know," he said. "I scarcely believe in it. Lately put a match to the powder in the St. George's, but 'twill only be a noise and a puff of smoke."

But Fraide did not smile. "What is the feeling down at Wark?" he asked. "Has it awakened any interest?"

"At Wark? Oh, I—I don't quite know. I have been a little out of touch with Wark in the last few weeks. A man has so many private affairs to look to—He was uneasy under his chief's scrutiny."

Never before had the sensation presented itself, but once set up it ran through all his susceptibilities. By an absurd freak of fancy those varying eyes seemed to pierce through his lids, almost through his eyeballs. The cold perspiration that was his daily horror broke out on his forehead, and at the same moment Fraide, his leader, turned, leaned over the back of his seat and touched his knee.

Chilcote started and opened his eyes. "I—I believe I was dozing," he said confusedly.

Fraide smiled his dry, kindly smile. "A fatal admission for a member of the opposition," he said. "But I was looking for you earlier in the day, Chilcote. There is something behind this Persian affair. I believe it to be a mere first move on Russia's part. You big trading people will find it worth watching."

"At Wark? Oh, I—I don't quite know. I have been a little out of touch with Wark in the last few weeks. A man has so many private affairs to look to—He was uneasy under his chief's scrutiny."

Fraide's lips parted as if to unkenne reply, but with a certain dignified reticence he closed them again and turned away.

Chilcote leaned back in his place and furtively passed his hand over his forehead. His mind was possessed by one consideration—the consideration of himself. He glanced down the crowded, lighted house to the big glass doors; he glanced about him at his colleagues, indifferent or interested; then surreptitiously his fingers strayed to his waistcoat pocket.

Usually he carried his morphia tablets with him, but today by a lapse of memory he had left them at home. He knew this, nevertheless he continued to search, while the need of the drug rushed through him with a sense of physical sickness. He lost hold on the business of the house; unconsciously he half rose from his seat.

The man next him looked up. "Hold your ground, Chilcote," he said. "Rayforth is drying up."

With a wave of relief Chilcote dropped back into his place. Whatever the confusion in his mind it was evidently not obvious in his face.

Rayforth resumed his seat, there was the usual slight stir and pause; then Saleit, the member for Salechester, rose.

With Saleit's first words Chilcote's head again sought his pocket, and again his eyes strayed toward the doors, but Fraide's erect head and stiff back just in front of him held him quiet. With an effort he pulled out his notes and smoothed them nervously; but, though his gaze was fixed on the pages, not a line of Blessington's clear writing reached his mind. He glanced at the face of the speaker, then at the faces on the treasury bench, then once more he leaned back in his seat.

The man beside him saw the movement. "Pinking the dry dock?" he whispered jestingly.

"No," Chilcote turned to him suddenly. "But I feel heartily—have felt heartily for weeks."

The other looked at him more closely. "Anything wrong?" he asked. It was a novel experience to be confided in by Chilcote.

"Oh, it's the grind—the infernal grind," he said. As he said it he seemed to him suddenly that his strength gave way. He forgot his companion, his position, everything except the urgent instinct that filled mind and body. Scarcely knowing what he did he rose and leaned forward to whisper in Fraide's ear.

Fraide was seen to turn, his thin face interested and concerned, then he was seen to nod once or twice in acquiescence, and a moment later Chilcote stepped quietly out of his place.

One or two men spoke to him as he hurried from the house, but he shook them off almost unheeding, and making for the nearest exit, hailed a cab.

The drive to Grosvenor square was a misery. Time after time he changed from one corner of the cab to the other, his acute internal pains prolonged by every delay and increased by every motion. At last, weak in all his limbs, he stepped from the vehicle at his own door.

Entering the house, he instantly mounted the stairs and passed to his own room. Opening the bedroom door, he peered in cautiously, then pushed the door wide. The light had been switched on, but the room was empty. With a nervous excitement scarcely to be kept in check, he entered, shut and locked the door, then moved to the wardrobe and, opening it, drew the tube of tablets from the shelf.

His hand shook violently as he carried the tube to the table. The strain of the day, the anxiety of the past hours, with their final failure, had found sudden expression. Mixing a larger dose than any he had before allowed himself, he swallowed it hastily and, walking across the room, threw himself, fully dressed, upon the bed.

TERMS OF PEACE APPROVED BY POPE

Vatican and France May Agree on Plan

Proposition Covers Contract for All Catholic Religious Edifices in Country.

END OF STRUGGLE IS SEEN

Paris, Jan. 31.—The proposition which the French bishops, with the approval of the pope, have submitted to the government seems to offer the first real prospect of an adjustment of the conflict between church and state under the separation law. While it involves a material modification of the position taken in the last papal encyclical, the proposition put forward has all the appearance of an ultimatum.

Whether the government, in spite of the concessions made in the interest of religious peace, will accept a settlement based upon the absolute recognition of the Roman hierarchy remains to be seen. The model contract which the bishops have submitted provides for the virtual lease of the churches in perpetuity to the parish priests by the mayors, the leases being for 18 years and renewable by their successors.

Bishops to Be in Control.

The leases, which carry a stipulation engaging the communal, municipal and state authorities not to interfere with the administration of the church and parish, are equalized without the express ratification of the bishop and become null the moment the parish priest loses the bishop's authorization. The bishops must act together to insure the acceptance of the contracts everywhere or nowhere.

The propositions made by the bishops make it clear that no rent is to be paid and that the contracts must cover all the Roman Catholic religious edifices in France or none. It developed today that the report that Cardinal Richier, the archbishop of Paris, had summoned another meeting of the episcopate was not correct. The cardinal only summoned meetings of the regional assemblies of bishops, to which the pope's decision was communicated.

The bishops proposition created a stir in parliamentary circles. The followers of ex-Premier Combes were loud in their assertions that it was utterly unacceptable, but the more moderate republican groups were less emphatic.

Sees End of Struggle.

The serious press welcomes the proposal of the bishops as offering the possibility of an exit from the struggle. The semi-official Temps this evening, while it condemns the needlessly imperative tone of the bishops' resolutions and points out the absurdity of trying to exact in advance the consent of 36,000 communal mayors, thinks that the Vatican's tardy acceptance of the desirability of accommodating the canonical conditions to the legislation at last opens the door to a modus vivendi.

Trial by Telephone.

Trial by telephone is the latest from Wisconsin. At Tarrant a Justice of the Peace entertained a charge against a rural resident who failed to appear for a hearing. Straightway the court called up the alleged offender on the phone, and the following dialogue ensued:

"Hello, John," said the court. "I wish you would come down today."

"What for?"

"The town marshal has sworn out a warrant against you for beating him up election day. I want to try you."

"I'll have to send a constable after you."

"But I'm busy husking corn and building a fence around my east forty. Why don't you try me now?"

"All right. Are you guilty?"

"Yep."

"Five dollars."

"All right, judge, I will send it down by the rural mail carrier. Good by."

No man ever got very far on the life-journey if he was afraid of stones bruising his feet.

Women Who Wear Well.

It is astonishing how great a change a few years of married life often make in the appearance and disposition of many women. The freshness, the charm, the brilliance vanish like the bloom from a flower which is rudely handled. The matron is only a dim shadow, a faint echo of the charming maiden. Few young women appreciate the shock of the system through the change which comes with marriage and motherhood. Many neglect to deal with the unpleasant pelvic drains and weaknesses which too often come with marriage and motherhood, not understanding that this secret drain is robbing the cheek of its freshness and the form of its fairness.

As surely as the general health suffers when there is derangement of the health of the delicate womanly organs, so surely when these organs are established in health the face and form at once witness to the fact in renewed comeliness. More than a million women have found health and happiness in the use of Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It makes weak women strong and sick women well. Ingredients on label—contains no alcohol or harmful habit-forming drugs. It is made wholly of those native, American, medicinal roots most highly recommended by leading medical authorities of all the several schools of practice for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments.

For nursing mothers, or for those broken-down in health by too frequent bearing of children, also for the expectant mothers, to prepare the system for the coming of baby and make its advent easy and almost painless, there is no medicine quite so good as "Favorite Prescription." It is a most potent invigorating tonic and strengthening nerve, nicely adapted to woman's delicate system by a physician of large experience in the treatment of woman's peculiar ailments.

Bad Symptoms. The woman who has periodical headaches, backache, sees imaginary dark spots or specks floating or dancing before her eyes, has gnawing distress or heavy full feeling in stomach, faint spells, dragging-down feeling in lower abdominal or pelvic region, easily startled or excited, irregular or painful periods, with or without pelvic catarrh, is suffering from weaknesses and derangements that should have early attention. Not all of above symptoms are likely to be present in any case at one time.

Neglected or badly treated and such cases often run into maladies which demand the surgeon's knife if they do not result fatally.

No medicine extant has such a long and numerous record of cures in such cases as Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription.

No medicine has such a strong professional endorsement of each of its several ingredients—worth more than any number of ordinary non-professional testimonials. The very best ingredients known to medical science for the cure of woman's peculiar ailments enter into its composition. No alcohol, harmful, or habit-forming drug is to be found in the list of its ingredients printed on each bottle-wrapper and attested under oath as complete and correct.

In any condition of the female system can do only good—never harm. Its whole effect is to strengthen, invigorate and regulate the whole female system, and especially the pelvic organs. When these are deranged in function or affected by disease, the stomach and other organs of digestion become sympathetically deranged, the nerves are weakened, and a long list of bad, unpleasant symptoms follow. Too much must not be expected of the "Favorite Prescription." It will not perform miracles; will not cure tumors—no medicine will. It will often prevent them, if taken in time, and thus the operating table and the surgeon's knife may be avoided.

Doctor's All Agree. The most eminent writers on Materia Medica, whose works are consulted as authorities by physicians of all the different schools of practice, exist, in the most positive terms, the curative virtues of each and every ingredient entering into Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. In fact it is the only medicine, put up for sale through druggists for the cure of all diseases of the mucous surfaces, as nasal catarrh, throat, laryngeal, and bronchial affections attended by lingering, or hang-on-coughs that has any such professional endorsement—worth more than any amount of lay or non-professional testimonials.

Do not expect too much from the use of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. It will not work miracles. It will not cure consumption in its advanced stages. No medicine will. Nor is the "Discovery" so good for a sudden attack of acute cough, but for the lingering, obstinate, hang-on-coughs, accompanying catarrh, throat, laryngeal and bronchial affections, it is a most efficacious remedy. In cases accompanied with wasting of flesh, night sweats, weak stomach and poor digestion with faulty assimilation, and which, if neglected or badly treated are apt to lead to consumption, the "Discovery" has proven wonderfully successful in effecting cures.

The formula is printed on every wrapper of "Golden Medical Discovery," attested as to correctness under oath, and you can't afford to accept any substitute of unknown composition for this non-secret remedy no matter what selfish interests may prompt the dealer to urge such upon you. In fact it is an insult to your intelligence for him to do so. You know what you want and it is his place to supply that want.

Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets are the original "Little Liver Pills" first put up by old Dr. Pierce over 40 years ago. Much imitated, but never equaled. They cleanse, invigorate and regulate stomach, liver and bowels, curing biliousness and constipation. Little sugar-coated granules—easy to take as candy.

Dr. Pierce may be consulted by letter free of charge. Address Dr. J. C. Pierce, Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute, Buffalo, N. Y.

Dr. Pierce's Medical Adviser (1000 pages) is sent free on receipt of 21 one-cent stamps for paper-covered, or 31 stamps for cloth-bound copy. Address Dr. Pierce as above.

Monongahela Coal and Coke Company and Central Coal and Iron Company.

THEY MAY BE CONSOLIDATED

Louisville Jan. 31.—The visit of Thomas Coleman du Pont, of Wilmington, Del., president of the American Delivery company, the so-called "power trust," and president of the Central Coal and Iron company, who has been here for several days past, is said to presage a business deal of great import to the coal interests of Kentucky and Tennessee. Nothing less than the merger of the Monongahela Coal and Coke company and the Central Coal and Iron company is in sight.

Should the Monongahela acquire the Central Coal and Iron company, it would thereby become practically master of the situation in Kentucky and Tennessee. For some time past work has been steadily in progress on the Green river which will eventually in the latter company getting a navigable outlet to the Ohio. A system of locks and dams is being constructed, and when the work is completed Central Kentucky will have an opening to market its coal. Incidentally, Central Kentucky is dominated by the Central Coal and Iron company, which has offices in Louisville.

The vast importance of this step can not be overestimated. The Monongahela company controls the Pittsburg coal situation here, and a fusion of interests would result in the whole Ohio valley coming under their domination.

The chief holdings of the Central Coal and Iron company are in Muhlenberg, Hopkins, and Ohio counties. Michael Finnegan is manager of the company, having succeeded to the place on the death of Spalding Coleman.

Mr. du Pont is stopping at The Seelbach, and would neither deary or affirm the report today.

The Tuxedo Coat.

"They are beginning to wear Tuxedo coats in Texas," says a New York paper. "Beginning" is good! Don't you know, man, that the Tuxedo coat was invented in Texas, when a cowboy had the talk shot off his chin hammer coat?—Denver Republican.

FIRST SHOWING OF WASH SUITS FOR THE LITTLE MAN

BY THE HOUSE OF WEILLE, THE PROGRESSIVE STORE

It is a pleasure to announce to mothers that on Monday, February 4, we will display in our mammoth Children's Department, occupying the entire second floor, an immense line of Wash Suits for children, aged 2 1-2 to 6 years. Your presence is earnestly desired.

The boys' suits which we are showing this season are, without a doubt, the handsomest and swellest ever shown in Paducah, embracing all the newest novelties--Buster Brown, Peter Pan, Russian Blouse and Sailor Suits. All the new models have knickerbocker trousers and the blouses come either with or without collars. The favored materials are white, blue and tan linen and linen crash, fancy and white chambrays, pique and shadow weaves. Some of the suits are plain and some of them are prettily trimmed. Priced from $1.00 to $6.00.

This line is designed and made by the most noted manufacturer of children's clothing in the country--Ivan Frank & Co., makers of the celebrated Buster Brown Suits.

Mothers, in justice to yourselves, we urge you to come Monday and bring the little fellows with you. You will enjoy seeing this exclusive display and we shall be more than glad to show it to you.

RIVER NEWS

River Stages.
Calto	49.1	0.5 fall
Chattanooga	5.1	0.1 fall
Cincinnati	22.9	5.9 fall
Evansville	41.7	1.8 fall
Florence	3.7	0.3 fall
Johnsonville	13.1	0.5 fall
Louisville	9.2	3.9 fall
Mt. Carmel	22.5	1.1 fall
Nashville	11.2	0.6 fall
Pittsburg	3.7	0.1 fall
Davis Island Dam—Missing.
St. Louis	17.2	0.2 rise
Mt. Vernon	45.8	1.1 fall
Paducah	41.8	0.5 fall

All the reports from other towns showed the cheerful falling sign yesterday and Paducah has joined the chorus. The stage this morning was 41.8 with a fall of 0.5 in the last 24 hours. Business at the wharf is good with the packets running.

Probably the record run to Cairo from Paducah was made yesterday by the Klt Carson, which recently was let off the dry docks after a thorough overhauling. A telegram to Captain Young Taylor of the dry docks from the captain of the Klt Carson, says the run was made with three barges in tow, in two hours. It's going down stream, of course, and without any stops, but as the distance is some 50 miles, the speed was fine.

In addition to the troubles of high water, the steamer Joe Wheeler is being held over at Paducah because an engineer cannot be secured. John Ryman, who came in with the Wheeler from Chattanooga as head engineer, was sick and left yesterday for his home in Nashville. Efforts were made to secure an engineer here, but a difference over wages made Paducah men decline the job. This difference was overcome by the boat paying their demands, but another hitch arose when they refused to run with the assistant engineer because he is not an association man. The Joe Wheeler is at the wharf today waiting for a solution of the problem. Telegrams were sent to Louisville to try to get an engineer, but without success so far.

The City of Memphis did not get away for the Tennessee river last night until 11 o'clock on account of an accident at Jopka the day before. The Memphis backed up to the railroad docks but before they were ready an engine backed a string of cars down to the dock and against the Memphis. The guards were broken up but no serious damage resulted.

The Joe Fowler arrived today from Evansville and got away in a few hours on the return trip.

Saturday was the day set for the John Hopkins to get back in the Evansville trade after a month's lay-off with a broken shaft. The Hopkins probably will come up Friday from Mount City.

The Dick Fowler will get away Monday for Cairo harring another rise in the river.

The Henrietta at last got away for the Tennessee river after ties yesterday.

The machinery has about been installed on the new steamer Alton Eagle of the Leyhe fleet in the mouth of the Tennessee river. It will be the last of February before these packets begin to leave for their regular trades and the last one will get away the middle of March.

Official Forecasts.
The Ohio at Evansville and Mt. Vernon will fall rapidly, the rate of fall increasing greatly daily for several days. At Paducah and Cairo, will continue falling the rate of the fall becoming rapid by Friday.

The Tennessee from Florence to the mouth will continue falling.

The Mississippi from Chester to Cairo, will continue falling rapidly.

The lower Wabash will fall rapidly. Floating ice will continue in the Mississippi for a week or more.

JURORS EXCUSED

TWO MORE GOING; TWO MORE IN THE BOX.

District Attorney Jerome Asks the Court to Let Them Go, but Makes No Explanation.

New York, Jan. 31.—When the roll call of jurors and talesmen was completed in the Thaw case this morning District Attorney Jerome arose and addressed the court as follows:

"Please the court: After a conference with the counsel for the defense, we have decided to ask you to excuse David S. Walker, juror No. 4, and Louis Haas, juror No. 9." Justice Fitzgerald announced that the jurors were excused. Thaw was amazed at the suddenness of affairs, and turned to his counsel, Mr. Peabody, and asked what it all meant. He seemed satisfied with Peabody's explanation, but there was a trace of annoyance on the face of Jerome as he told the court he did not deem it advisable to make known the reason for relieving Walker and Haas. This leaves nine jurors in the box and an extra panel of 100 talesmen appeared today.

When the Thaw trial recessed at 1 o'clock, two more jurors were accepted. This brings the number to eleven. Another panel of 100 is ordered by Justice Fitzgerald. This makes 500 men summoned.

District Attorney Jerome introduced a new figure into the case when he asked talesmen if they knew Cincinnati and a Mr. Baker of that city. Nobody confessed to knowing Mr. Baker and the defense seemed utterly surprised at the introduction of the name.

From questions asked talesmen by the defense yesterday it appeared that the prosecution will have to consider more than one line of defense.

It became known today that the mysterious woman who has been cornered by the defense in Mrs. J. J. Calne, and she is being kept in hiding to avoid a subpoena by Jerome. She will be one of the chief witnesses for the defense.

JOHN SHARP WILLIAMS

Wants the So-Called Paper Trust Investigated.

Washington, Jan. 31.—Representative John Sharp Williams, of Mississippi, introduced a bill in the house today for an investigation by the department of commerce and labor of the so-called paper trust.
